BOWLING GREEN, OHIO

First-place Falcons roll on

The BG News/Jay Mardock

Wide receiver Ronnie Redd breaks away for his fifth touchdown of the season in the football team's 45-14 blowout win over Ohio University. That catch helped Bowling Green move all alone into first place in the Mid-American Conference with a 3-0 record.

Offense explodes against Ohio

ATHENS — It's still autumn in Ohio, but on the Bobcat bench you would have sworn it was the dead of winter.

It was as if the Falcons started a snowball rolling at the top of one of those southern Ohio hills — and by the time it reached OU's Peden Field — Bowling Green had caused a full-fledged avalanche.

Buried under a flurry of turnovers, special team blunders, and a storm of orange Falcon helmets, Ohio University was blown out Saturday by Bowling Green, 45-14.

And since Miami and Central Michigan battled to a 10-10 tie, Bowling Green's 3-0 Mid-American Conference record puts them all alone in first place. The Falcons are 5-1 overall while Ohio dropped to 1-4-1, 0-3-1.

"We've been a confident team all year," BG defensive end Steve Wilbourne said. "When you play with confidence, big plays happen. Hopefully we can carry that over each week."

Big plays were the norm for the Falcons literally from the opening kickoff until they had the game safely tucked away, which didn't take long.

In the game's opening moments, OU defensive back Tony Poole coughed up the football on the kickoff and could not beat BG's speedy defensive back, Ken Burrell, to the ball.

Five plays later, LeRoy Smith was diving in the end zone for the first of his two touchdown runs and the Falcons were up 7-0 before two full minutes had expired.

Falcon defensive back Ken Burrell picks up the loose ball on the opening kickoff at Ohio University. It took the Falcons less than two minutes to post the game's first touchdown after this play. Burrell later intercepted a pass and had an impressive 21-yard return.

Volleyball chalks up two more

Falcons improve record to 5-1 in the MAC

by Steve Seasley
sports writer

The volleyball team defeated Kent State and Ohio U. this weekend to raise its record to 13-3 and 5-1 in the Mid-American Conference.

The Falcons pummeled Kent 15-4, 15-2 and 15-6, controlling every facet of the game. Senior co-captain Tammy Schiller drove home 13 kills in 19 attempts and a .684 attacking percentage to secure the victory.

The Falcons were never in trouble as junior Holli Costein and senior co-captain Lisa Mika provided ample support for Schiller and company. Costein posted eight kills in 17 attempts and a .353 hitting percentage while Mika was the owner of a .375 percentage with 12 kills.

Junior setter Carey Amos turned in a well-rounded performance with 33 assists, four service aces, eight digs and one block.

As a team, the Falcons had a .376 attacking percentage compared to a .035 mark for the battered and bewildered Golden Flashes of Kent State.

The Flashes were wounded early and often in the battle of the front lines. BG's terrific trio of Schiller, Mika and Costein persistently planted missile-like spikes continually eluding the outstretched hands of off-balanced Flashes.

Saturday against the Bobcats, the Falcons overslept for the opening stages of the match and still showed signs of drowsiness throughout before overcoming a scrappy Bobcat squad, hungry for an upset.

The Brown and Orange were in the unfamiliar position of coming from behind in each game to garner the match, 15-11, 17-15, 11-15, 17-15.

The service game of the Bobcats provided the Falcons with numerous problems as BG's cycle for success was interrupted in an abrupt fashion.

Struggling with its passing and serving, the Falcons were unable to exploit the Bobcats in the attacking department.

Trailing 4-8 in game one, BG adopted the services of Costein to escape from defeat. She knocked home a service ace to tie the score at 8-8 and dominated the net the rest of the game to propel the Brown and Orange. Costein turned in a good day's work with nine kills, 13 digs, two service aces and one block.

In game two, the Bobcats used confidence and respectable net play to jump out to a surprising 11-5 lead. Continued problems in the passing game and the service game buried the Falcons in a huge hole and set the scenario for an exciting finish.

BG stormed back to tie the score at 11-11 on a kill by junior Julie Fortkamp. The two teams battled back and forth with the Falcons eventually capturing the game on a block by Costein and Mika. The game featured six side-outs with the score knotted at 14-14.

Game three saw BG stroll to a 7-3 lead that it was unable to hold. The Bobcats tied the score at 9-9 before overtaking the Falcons in supreme fashion. The Bobcats utilized short setting and all-out hustle to send the match to a fourth game.

The match aged like a fine wine as the fourth and final game would be the most entertaining of all.

BG's engine failed to run on all cylinders as the Bobcats bolted out to a 7-1 lead.

Head coach Denise Van De Walle reinserted Mika and junior Angellette Love to combat the potent net play possessed by the Bobcats. A rejuvenated Mika led the Falcons back with two consecutive kills, and when Love made a spectacular effort to keep BG in a point that it eventually won, the Falcons and their fans were wide awake for the first time in the match.

The Brown and Orange grabbed the lead at 9-8 on a block by Mika and went ahead 11-8 when Mika and Fortkamp teamed up to stuff a potential hot shot from a Bobcat performer.

The game swung back and forth with each team owning the lead in its late stages. The excitement came to an end as well as the Bobcats' dream of an upset when Amos and Fortkamp put down a block to harness the win.

"A MAC win is very important for us," said Mika. "They came after us hard. It was good to win. We didn't want to get into a fifth game with them. It was a frustrating match for everybody. Coach said to start playing our game and not to play their scrappy type of game."

Schiller and Mika led the Falcons with 21 kills apiece. Schiller possessed a .436 hitting percentage with 17 digs while Mika had a .245 mark and a team-high 19 digs. Amos contributed 54 assists and 12 digs to the winning cause.

The Falcons return to action on October 19 when they journey to Ball State.

Falcon tailback LeRoy Smith dances into the endzone in a recent game. Smith scored two more TD's Saturday against the Bobcats.

Falcons' latest victory truly a 'special' one

by Rob McCurdy
sports writer

ATHENS — Two weeks ago against Navy, Bowling Green's offense totaled 458 yards and 22 points to lead the team to a three-point victory.

Last week, the Falcon defense limited Central Michigan to 281 total yards and did not allow the Chippawwas to score in the final period.

Saturday, it was the Falcons' special teams turn to carry the team, as the BG rolled to a 45-14 victory at Ohio U.

Going into the game, Blackney felt the difference would come from the special teams because, offensively and defensively, both squads were similar on the stat sheets.

BG was fourth in the Mid-American conference in total offense, OU was fifth; BG ranked fifth in scoring offense, OU ranked sixth; BG was sixth in total defense; OU was seventh.

"I said all week long, the biggest difference between our football team and Ohio was that we were playing with experienced players," Blackney said.

"What we asked our special teams to do for this game was to try to break it open," he said.

Ask and ye shall receive.

Ohio's Tony Poole fumbled the opening kickoff after being hit by Mike Haack. The Falcons' Ken Burress recovered the ball at the Bobcat 22, setting up BG's first touchdown.

Burress recovered another Bobcat fumble in the OU endzone, intercepted a pass and knocked down another.

"I have to give credit to the other 10 guys. They went strong to the ball and I was the fortunate one to be there," Burress said.

Ask and ye shall receive.

On fourth-and-10 at the OU 30, BG's Joe Bair ran blocked the Bobcat punt, picked up the loose ball and returned it four yards for the Falcons' second touchdown with 6:51 remaining in the first quarter.

"It was definitely a punt block we had worked on during the week," Bair said. "It was a matter of the other guys on the punt return team taking a lot of pressure off me. The coaches picked up some tips that we saw in films. We put a lot of emphasis on it, and it worked out well for us today."

Bobcat coach Tom Lichtenberg said, "We had a break-down on the inside, no one even touched him."

Ask and ye shall receive.

With 33 seconds remaining in the first half, BG's Brian Leaver kicked a 24-yard field goal to give the Falcons a 24-7 lead at half-time.

"I think the special teams deserve the greatest amount of credit, at least early in the game, for breaking the game open for us," Blackney said.

The Falcon special teams set up 18 first half points.

"They (BG's special teams) turned the momentum around early," Lichtenberg said. "The kickoff and blocked punt, their field goal guy was perfect, their extra point guy was perfect."

Central plays third tie

MOUNT PLEASANT, Mich. (AP) — Central Michigan had to settle for its third tie in four Mid-American Conference games when Neil Dougherty's 2-yard touchdown pass to Jeremy Patterson early in the fourth quarter on Saturday gave Miami of Ohio a 10-10 tie.

Central Michigan (3-1-3, 0-1-3), which had tied Toledo and Ohio, led 7-0 and 10-3 before the pass by Dougherty, who finished with eight completions on 14 attempts for 79 yards, capped a 50-yard scoring drive that took 5:17.

Central Michigan took a 7-0 lead at 8:36 in the first quarter on Jeff Bender's 55-yard pass to Ken Ealy, who finished with 5 receptions for 107 yards.

Miami (4-1-1, 2-0-1) closed to 7-3 on Terry Knecht's 39-yard field goal 6:06 into the second quarter.

UT no match for Washington

SEATTLE (AP) — Mario Bailey became Washington's career leader in touchdown receptions by catching three scoring passes from Billy Joe Hobert in the first half on Saturday as No. 3 Washington's beat Toledo 48-0.

Bailey had to share the spotlight at Husky Stadium with Washington's powerful defense, which posted consecutive shutouts for the first time in coach Don James' 17 seasons. The Huskies (5-0) beat Arizona 54-0 at Seattle last week and haven't given up a touchdown in the last 13 quarters.

Washington last had consecutive shutouts in 1962, against California and UCLA.

Bailey had touchdown receptions of 70, 28 and 4 yards from Hobert as Washington led 21-0 after the first quarter and 34-0 at halftime against the Rockets (2-2-1). Bailey's 17 career TD catches broke the Washington record of 16 set by Spider Gaines (1975-78) and tied by Lonzell Hill (1983-86) and Brian Slater (1985-88).

Bailey caught six passes for 170 yards, all in the first half, as James substituted liberally in the second half against a team coached by his former offensive coordinator, Gary Pinkel.

BSU edges EMU

YPSILANTI, Mich. (AP) — Kenny Stucker's 41-yard field goal in the final moments Saturday lifted Ball State to a 10-8 victory over Eastern Michigan in the Mid-American Conference.

The only other scoring for Ball State (4-3 overall, 2-2 MAC) came early in the first quarter when quarterback Lance Aukerman completed a 27-yard touchdown pass to Travis Moore.

Eastern Michigan's Jim Langeloh kicked a 27-yard field goal in the second quarter and another in the third. The Eagles (1-6, 1-3) took the lead late in the third with a safety when a Ball State punt attempt snapped into the end zone.

Western keeps pace

DEKALB, Ill. (AP) — Brad Tayles threw for 208 yards and two touchdowns, leading Western Michigan to a 22-10 victory Saturday over slump-ridden Northern Illinois.

Tayles completed 14 of 33 passes for the Broncos (5-2), who also got 162 yards rushing on 32 carries from Andre Wallace.

Losing for the fourth straight game, the Huskies (1-5), usually a rushing team, picked up 224 yards through the air while being held to 151 on the ground.

After Willy Roy's 32-yard field goal gave Northern a 3-0 advantage, Tayles hit John Morton with a 55-yard scoring pass and Jay Barresi kicked a 47-yard field goal to put Western Michigan up 9-3.

Tayles connected with Walter Cade on a 13-yard TD pass for a 15-3 halftime lead for the Broncos.

Two straight for UC

KENT, Ohio (AP) — Vince Powell and David Small each rushed for more than 100 yards for the second straight week as Cincinnati made it two in a row and beat Kent State 38-19 Saturday.

Cincinnati (2-4) had defeated Louisville 30-7 last week behind the dual 100-yard performances of Powell and Small.

FIRST PLACE

Bowling Green's running game would go on to outgain the Bobcats 235-76. Time of possession was also lopsided in the Falcons' favor by nearly a full quarter (14 minutes).

"I think we had something to prove on offense," said fullback Scott Lindsey, who returned to early season form with 47 yards on 10 carries. "The defense had saved us in a couple of games there, and it was time for us to step it up and give them a little rest."

After shocking OU with the first touchdown, the Falcons came right back with another jolting blow just six minutes later. The Bobcats were lined up to punt on fourth-and-10 from their own 30 yard line.

BG called the punt block play and executed perfectly. Safety Joe Bair burst through the line untouched and stuffed the ball back in the punters face. He easily picked it up and walked the last three yards for another BG touchdown.

"That's a play we've been going over all week in practice and it worked today," Bair said. "The coaches picked up on something in the film and emphasized that to us a lot."

By the end of the first quarter, 18,200 once-screaming OU homecoming fans had seen the Falcons' special teams take over the game.

"The last thing coach (Gary Blackney) told us before the game was special teams, special teams," fullback Chris Beier said. "And he got what he wanted."

"They (Ohio) have a young team and they're building. And in some ways our two teams are pretty even," Blackney said.

"You have to give the special teams credit today for setting the tone of this ball game."

By the second quarter, the Falcons started having some fun. In the quarter's first drive, quarterback Erik White and the offense put together a 16-play, 80-yard drive which had a most unusual payoff at the end.

On first-and-goal at the nine, White pitched out to Smith on the right side, but Smith didn't go very far with the ball. Instead, he threw the ball across the field to White, who was wide open for an easy touchdown catch.

Make the score 21-0 and but don't start turning out the lights — this party was just beginning.

"They're the best MAC team we've played so far, and I hope they win it all," OU coach Tom Lichtenberg said. "I don't have a better friend in the coaching business than Gary Blackney and he showed you that today. He pulled the dogs off or the score might have been 90-14."

In the second half, those dogs had a few more bones to pick before they were through.

Wide receiver Ronnie Redd kept up his pace of catching every other ball for a touchdown. His third quarter 30-yard reception from White was his fifth TD catch — a team high. He's only caught 10 passes total.

With 5:28 to play in the third, Smith plowed in for his second touchdown of the game, and the score was 38-7.

Tailback Zeb Jackson capped the Bowling Green scoring by going airborne from a yard away.

Next up for the first-place Falcons is Saturday's homecoming game against Toledo. The Rockets were beat up 48-0 at Washington on Saturday.

Academic Search:

USA Today is searching for students to be named to its 1992 All-USA Academic Team. Winners will be selected by a panel of educators, chosen in cooperation with the contests' co-sponsors. Criteria are designed to find students who excel not only in scholarship but in leadership roles on and off campus. The key element will be the student's outstanding original academic or intellectual product. Each of the 20 first-team members will receive a $2,500 cash award. For more information and an application form, call Carol Skalski at 703-276-3467.

Scholarships for minorities:

The National Research Council plans to award approximately 25 Ford Foundation Postdoctoral Fellowships for minorities in a program to provide opportunities for continued education and experience in minority research areas. Scientists, engineers and scholars in the humanities who show greatest promise of future achievement in academic research and scholarship in higher education will be selected for the fellowships. For application materials, inquire to Fellowship Office, GR420A, National Research Council, 2101 Constitution Ave., Washington, D.C., 20418.

Thomas vs. Hill: who to believe?

by James Rowley
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four friends of Anita Hill solemnly testified Sunday that in the 1980s, she told them Supreme Court nominee Clarence Thomas had made unwanted sexual advances toward her. Hill said "he wouldn't take no for an answer," one recalled.

Hill also quoted Thomas as saying, "You know if you had witnesses, you'd have a perfect case against me," Susan Hoerchner told the Senate Judiciary Committee, which is probing Hill's allegations of sexual advances and Thomas' unequivocal denials.

Hoerchner and three others appeared as opening witnesses on the third day of wrenching, nationally televised hearings into the sexual harassment charges. The Senate is scheduled to vote Tuesday on confirming Thomas, a 43-year-old black federal appeals judge whose nomination has turned into a drama of sex and politics unlike any other.

Many senators contacted about the hearings said they would wait until they were over before deciding how to vote.

The testimony by Hill's acquaintances also provided an extraordinarily personal discussion about sexual harassment: "Being a black woman you know you have to put up with a lot," Ellen M. Wells told the committee of 14 white male senators. "So you grit your teeth and you do it," she said, adding that she had been "touched in the workplace" more than once.

Republicans tried with little success to pin down witnesses on possible inconsistencies in Hill's actions. Under questioning from Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., Wells, Hoerchner and the two others conceded they had no first-hand knowledge of the incidents that Hill alleges.

But they said they had no reason to disbelieve their friend. Wells said it might seem strange that Hill moved with Thomas from one agency to another, but said, "it's just something you steel yourself to do."

The testimony, essentially unshaken after nearly five hours, led as well to a political broadside from Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass. He said the panel should be "sensitive to the attempts of character assassination of Professor Hill. They're unworthy," he added, in obvious reference to Republican attempts on Saturday to undermine the credibility of Thomas' accuser.

Far from the crowded committee room, President Bush issued a fresh defense of his embattled

R.A. comes out of closet

Student takes risk and finds friendship and acceptance

by Kimberly Larson
human diversity reporter

Lesbian And Gay Alliance President Amy Bahl came out of her closet a second time this summer, and became the first known openly homosexual resident adviser at the University.

Bahl was hired during the summer to be an RA at Kohl Hall and was faced with the difficult decision of whether to reveal her sexual orientation to her residents.

"I feel that society internalizes homophobia, and somehow, I believed that to successfully complete my job, I could not let the residents know that I was a homosexual," Bahl said.

Bahl said she was afraid that by revealing such an important part of herself, she would lose the ability to keep a good rapport with her residents.

Bahl decided to come out to three staff members whom she believed could handle the situation well.

"The three staff members which I told were very supportive of me," Bahl said.

By the middle of the summer at least one-half of the staff knew Bahl was a homosexual, but most of them were very understanding to the situation, Bahl said.

It was not until a resident came right out and asked Bahl about her sexual orientation that she decided to hold a LAGA panel to reveal her identity.

"I was sitting in my room when a student came in and asked me about my sexuality," she said. "I freaked out because people could tell that I was homosexual without me telling them. At that point, I dealt with all my internal fears about coming out of the closet again."

After "freaking out," Bahl said, she regained her composure and thought clearly about what had just taken place.

"I thought 'What is my problem? I'm president of LAGA and I'm confident in who I am,'" she said. "Why should I worry?"

Bahl organized a LAGA panel to come in and help her reveal her homosexuality to the residents. Bahl said the panel was well attended and the residents seemed to take it very well.

"The residents who didn't like me at first probably still don't, but the ones that liked me, I still had a decent relationship with after I came out," Bahl said.

LAGA member Susan Ruma, one of the residents in Bahl's hall this summer, said many residents at Kohl — a co-ed residence hall during the summer — understood Bahl's stance.

"Most were supportive of her," Ruma said. "It was good because it gave us a chance to realize that even though someone is gay, you can still trust them."

Alise Brown, another resident on Bahl's floor, said "the majori-

Poll shows importance of degrees

NEW YORK (AP) — The percentage of adults who see college as vital to their careers has risen sharply in the last five years, according to a poll released last week.

Seventy-three percent of adults surveyed by the Council for Advancement and Support of Education agreed that a college degree is "very important" in getting a job or advancing a career. A similar survey in 1986 found only 58 percent thought so.

The new poll also revealed mounting discouragement over soaring college costs: only one in four adults believe that most can afford it, compared with 32 percent asked the same question five years ago.

Among ethnic groups, blacks put the the highest value on college: 86 percent called a degree

This week to be a 'blast'

University gears up for Homecoming festivities

by Eileen McNamara
general assignment reporter

Next week the University will undergo a major time warp.

The theme for this year's homecoming is "Blast from the Past" and UAO will break all time barriers by zipping through three decades in just a few days with activities commemorating the 50s, 60s and 70s.

"There is something for everyone this year," said UAO homecoming committee director Gayle Thatcher.

A hula-hoop contest will take place today at 1:00 p.m. in the Union Oval. Winners will be judged on longevity. Cash prizes are $25 for first place, $15 for second, and $10 for third. There will be music that matches the 50s theme.

On Tuesday, the 60s will take hold with a tie-dye party at the Union Oval at 1:00 p.m. Students can bring their own shirts, shorts or sheets, or buy shorts and t-shirts from UAO at the party.

Drag the bell-bottoms out of the closet for Wednesday when UAO brings back the 70s with a student version of The Gong Show at 7:00 p.m. in the Forum of the Student Services Building.

Just like the former TV show, the panel of judges will strike a gong to eliminate "undesirable" acts. Prizes are $75 cash for first place, a $50 gift certificate for Music Den for second and a $25 gift certificate for Campus Polye's for third.

On Thursday, the traditional parade down Ridge and N. College Streets begins at the ice arena at 6:30 p.m. and ends at College Park, where a pep rally and bonfire are will start at 7:15 p.m. The homecoming court will be announced at the rally, which will be hosted by radio DJ's Steve Mason and Diane Scribner of 93Q FM. Also, University sports teams, cheerleaders, pommerettes, Sic Sic and Freddie and Frieda Falcon will be there.

UAO will also be sponsoring "The Blast," a dance/party on Friday from 8:30 p.m. to midnight in the Lenhart Grand Ballroom. The homecoming court will make their appearance during the dance at 9:30. The dance decorations will have a 50s theme, but the music will be mostly modern, with some oldies thrown in. The dress is semi-formal and there is no admission fee.

Homecoming excitement and activities will peak on Saturday as Falcon football takes on the University of Toledo at Perry Stadium. Kickoff is at 1:30 p.m. The homecoming king and queen will be announced and crowned at halftime.

According to Thatcher, students are taking a more active role in Homecoming this year.

"SAO (Student Activities and Orientation) headed the Homecoming committee in years past," Thatcher said. "Some of the activities this year, such as 'The Blast' were put together by students alone (under the supervision of a non-student adviser) through UAO committees."

Alumni return to share experiences

by Julie Bauman
contributing reporter

University alumni are returning to campus this week to tell about their experiences in the working world.

Six alumni will take part in the "Alumni-Faculty Week" program sponsored by the College of Education and Allied Professions. The program gives students a chance to meet successful alumni and hear about their experiences in the "real world," said Ronald Russell, interim dean of the college.

Discussion topics of the alumni are planned to appeal to an array of students majoring in education, college student personnel, nutrition, sport management, and guidance and counseling. Of the six returning alumni, four obtained more than one degree from the University.

Alumni-Faculty Week begins with a presentation by Helen Lloyd, a retired elementary and special education teacher. Her topic of discussion is the use of puppets in an educational environment.

Lloyd used puppets throughout her 30 years of teaching and continues to give presentations and workshops all over the country. She will be demonstrating her collection of more than 500 puppets this morning at Gish Film Theater in Hanna Hall from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

Amy Doty, a teacher for the Bowling Green City Schools, will be discussing the importance of classroom discipline.

Doty will be giving three presentations. Presentations are scheduled for today from 6 to 7:30 p.m. in 114 Education Building, Wednesday from 4:30 to 6 p.m. in 116 BA Building, and also Wednesday from 6 to 7:30 p.m. in 203 Education Building.

Doty obtained two bachelor's degrees from the University. First in 1987 she earned one in music education, and another in 1989 in elementary education.

Two speakers are planned for Tuesday's alumni celebration. First is Brent Reitz, an account executive in the marketing and sales division of the Cleveland Cavaliers.

Reitz will discuss "The Marketing and Salesmanship of Professional Sports and Family Entertainment," at 9:30 a.m. in 202 Memorial Hall.

Reitz received his bachelor's degree in sports management in 1985. His senior internship with the Cleveland Cavaliers led him to his present position.

Sun's talk will address questions students may have concerning classes, culture and exchange rates.

Students of all majors are eligible to study abroad and in the case of studying in Xi'an they do not need to worry about language problems in their classes, Wu said.

Although all classes there are taught by Chinese instructors, classes taken by exchange students have translators in them at all times, Wu said.

Wu said students from the University of Akron are already studying at Xi'an and have adapted quite well to the cultural changes.

Program offers basic skills

University center 'tricks' kids into enjoying reading

by Julie Bauman
contributing reporter

Reading and writing are essential in today's society. However, for some these basic skills are a struggle. The University Reading Center is helping children to overcome these difficulties.

The Reading Center offers assistance to youths with reading and writing deficiencies through the Reading Improvement Program held on Saturday mornings.

According to Michael French, assistant professor of educational curriculum and instruction and director of the Center, the program is designed to help children in grades 1-12 develop their communication skills. Reading and writing play a large role in the actions of the program, but the trick is getting the children interested in reading.

Ginny Barnes, a reading consultant at the Center, said, "Children become excited about reading because of varied activities."

"We need to give the kids something to look forward to ... something different than school," Denise Sukup, a graduate assistant working in the program this fall said.

The "something different" being used to help the kids read this fall is puppets.

Reading Center pupils play with the puppets and develop their skills at the same time. The children can read stories or write their own and then act them out with the puppets.

The actual activities of each child may be slightly different. Each instructor meets one on one with the student and helps the student in whatever areas the child needs assistance.

According to Barnes, a special relationship also develops between the instructor and the student during the course of the program. In addition to being excited about learning to read, the children are also excited about their new friends.

When the children discover that relationship, and that they can indeed read, their self-esteem builds and they are capable of finding the same success while at school or elsewhere.

French said the program offers the children a chance to grow. He said the success the children discover helps them to want to read, and therefore their learning, or growth, is enhanced. A lot of hard work and dedication is required of all those involved, but, French said, "The high-fives and hugs (from the successful students) make it worth it."

The program is held every Saturday for 10 weeks. Two times are available for each session, 8:30 to 10 a.m. and 10:30 a.m. to noon. The fee of $150 includes the 10 sessions and a pre-evaluative assessment session used to help define the child's strengths and weaknesses.

ty of residents had already made the supposition that Amy was of a different sexual orientation, so it wasn't a shock when she formally came out and said it.

Brown said within the first two weeks some residents attempted to distance themselves from Bahl, but it was not a big problem on her floor.

Aside from the personal conflict Bahl experienced about once again coming out of the closet — she had earlier expressed her homosexuality to LAGA — there was another concern.

As far as Bahl knew, she was the first openly homosexual RA at the University.

Residence Management Director Bill Lanning said he has been at the University for 23 years and had never known anyone who has been openly homosexual while serving as RA.

Founders complex coordinator Eric Strom hired Bahl to be an RA and said he knew of her sexual orientation before he made his decision.

"I had known Amy prior to hiring her, and had known that she was a homosexual," Strom said. "I had no problems with it, and neither did the staff."

Strom said no complaints were made by students or parents after Bahl came out of the closet, and she acted no differently in regard to her job performance.

"I think Amy acted as a role model to floor members," he said.

Bahl said she believed that the support she received from her residents shows people are beginning to react better to those of a different sexuality.

"For many of these students, I am the first person they have come in contact with that is a homosexual," she said. "People do surprise me. Sometimes people give you every indication that they would not understand, and then they turn around and tell you they support you."

Bahl came out of the closet for the first time between her freshman and sophomore years.

She said she does not have many friends at her permanent home because of this, and she keeps in contact with only two people.

She said one of the two refused to talk to her for a year and is only now beginning to accept it. The other friend has been supportive.

Her family has attempted to provide support also, she said.

"My family loves me and is dealing with it, and supporting me," Bahl said.

Bahl lost her two closest friends at the University when she originally came out of the closet.

"To this day they won't speak to me, and it hurts very badly," she said. "I've learned which type of person is a real friend. I know I'm a good person inside."

Day to recognize groups

Students to be honored during Parents' Weekend game

by Michael Zawacki
contributing reporter

Attention campus organizations — it's now time for your moment in the spotlight.

Student Appreciation Day will be at Perry Stadium Nov. 9 during the Bowling Green/Kent State football game.

"We use the occasion of the football game to recognize the accomplishments of students and groups from the past academic year," said Phil Goldstein, University senior associate athletic director. "It's a way to do something for the groups on campus. It's self promotion for them and we would like to get everyone to participate."

Student Appreciation Day is in its fourth year and is again sponsored by the Athletic Department and The BG News.

The mechanics of the event have evolved very little over the last few years. Presidents and advisers of the previous year were sent a form to be completed and returned by Nov. 1.

"Sometimes the forms don't get to the right person because the Student Organizations Directory is a year old and some groups don't find out about it until it's too late," Goldstein said. In the forms, the leaders are asked to briefly describe the group's significant accomplishments from the past year and recognize any member who had a direct impact on the group.

Once the completed form is received by the athletic department, a letter of acknowledgment is sent back to the groups.

In its first year there was a big response to the idea of Student Appreciation Day, Goldstein said. It was originally planned to recognize the students and groups on the field but because of the large turnout it would have been an impossible feat to fit everyone on the field.

Now the group's accomplishments are recognized on the stadium's electronic scoreboard during the game, in the official football program sold during the games and in The BG News the week before the event.

In the past two years, Student Appreciation Day was held in conjunction with the night game. A new angle has been established this year in that it will coincide with Parent's Day.

This will allow the groups an extended deadline and a little extra time to get their forms together, according to Goldstein. It also enables the parents to acknowledge the their son's or daughter's accomplishments along with their peers.

"Parent's Day is the biggest turnout of the year, and if the weather is favorable and by the way the team has been playing we expect a big turnout," Goldstein said.

Those organizations that were not informed and are interested can return the form at the left and return it to Goldstein at the University athletic department, or contact Goldstein at 372-2401.

tions because undergraduate students from Akron are already there," Wu said.

Wu said there are Chinese students studying here but most of them are graduate students.

"I think through the China

Week we can promote students' interest to learn about China in general," said Xue Wei Wu, the coordinator of the week. "It will promote student understanding of the importance of having an international perspective."

The University has not yet sent students to Xi'an but has had a faculty exchange program with the school for nine years.

According to Wu other activities of the week will include the showing of movies, cultural entertainment and a tai ji demonstration.

Ozzie and Harriet? will be the topic of alumnus Jeannine

Studer, a counselor educator at Heidelberg College. Studer's presentation is sched-

A 1966 graduate of the home economics program, Susan Calvert Finn will have presentations on Wednesday at 9:30 a.m. at 207 Applied Human Ecology Building, and again at 12:15 p.m. in the Georgia Halstead Galleria.

Finn is director of the nutrition and public affairs for Ross Laboratories, Columbus, and is also involved with the American Dietetics Association.

Her presentation will focus on the variety of employment opportunities available to dietetics majors.

Finn's continued efforts to assist the public in obtaining accurate nutritional information have led her to more than 400 broadcast interviews, including network shows such as "Today" and "Good Morning America."

Another dual degree holder from the University, Suzanne Andrews, will discuss "Career Options for Adult Learners" Wednesday from 1:30 to 2:30 p.m. in 351 Education Building.

Andrews is employed by the University's Continuing Education Program as director of non-credit programs and computer classes. Her bachelor's degree in elementary and special education was earned in 1979, and her master's in college student personnel in 1988.

Today marks the 500th anniversary of Christopher Columbus' "discovery" of America. Yet, as activities are being planned around the country to celebrate the quincentenary, Native Americans contend the occasion is another way of denying their heritage and commending the way their ancestors were treated by the European settlers and explorers.

"People were here before he came, so how can you say that he discovered it?" University freshman Shonto Hoskay, a Navajo, asked. "That's going to reinforce the pride of how they took over and it ignores what went on."

"It's reinforcing that process of how white people took over America," Hoskay said.

To kick off the quincentenary, replicas of the Nina, Pinta and Santa Maria set sail from Spain on Oct. 12 to retrace Columbus' route. Other national events include exhibits at the Smithsonian's Museum of Natural History and the Library of Congress.

In opposition to these celebrations, Native Americans have organized groups, including the 1992 Alliance, to tell their side of the story.

"Columbus Day is like celebrating Hitler. As native people, we're saying 'This isn't right,'" Hoskay said. "It's not something we can run from. It's about time Native people are heard."

Anti-Columbus groups cite genocide, slavery, exploitation and environmental destruction as the explorer's achievements in the New World.

"Those types of issues are going to be brought up during the quincentenary," she said. "It's up to this day that the Native people are still facing genocide," Hoskay said.

She said Native Americans are banding together and "bringing awareness of culture of Native Americans to the mainstream of society."

"The events ... are bringing a lot of Native people together. It's a new sense of community," she said.

Hoskay hopes to raise awareness about these issues on the University campus. "I think the University needs to be aware of these issues," she said. "A lot of people aren't aware of what's going on."

She recounted a story about a classmate who first realized Hoskay is Native American. The student told her, "I thought you were all extinct."

"A lot of us still maintain our cultural practices and traditions," she said.

She said she has received little encouragement or support from the University to sponsor Native American events, such as speakers.

"If this University is so concerned about cultural diversity, why is it that they only have certain functions?" she asked.

According to Errol Lam, assistant professor of library information services, this is a good time for the University to raise awareness of the history of Native Americans.

"It's not a time of celebration. It's a time that they could point out the hardships and the bad things that happened rather than celebrate it," he said.

Lillian Ashcraft-Eason, assistant history professor will be speaking on anti-colonialism tonight at 7:30 in the Amani Room. The Black Student Union is sponsoring the event "to recognize the fact that Columbus did not discover America," according to BSU President Maurice Tate.

He said the purpose of the speech is to raise consciousness on campus. "This was the land of the Native Americans," he said.

"very important," compared with 72 percent of whites and 62 percent of Hispanics in the survey.

The survey by the Gallup Organization Inc. was based on 1,012 telephone interviews between June 10-16 among a nationally representative sample of Americans 18 or older. It had a margin of error of plus or minus three percentage points.

"It's no wonder the public is concerned about the affordability of higher education," said Robert Atwell, president of the American Council on Education, a Washington-based higher education lobby.
